Text 1: Coronavirus and Firearms: Are Gun Shops Essential Businesses?

Coronavirus anxiety has contributed to a boom in gun sales, but some states have ordered dealers to close alongside other businesses.

By Dan Levin

Published March 25, 2020

Groceries. Gasoline. Medical care. Marijuana, in some places. All have been __101__ essential to society in more than a dozen states that have ordered __102__ other businesses to close. But what about guns?

Firearm and ammunition sales have soared in recent weeks, so clearly, some Americans want them. A gun industry association is lobbying federal and state governments to categorize firearm manufacturers and dealers as critical infrastructure, complaining that F.B.I. background checks are slowing things down as __103__ people try to purchase weapons.

But officials have been split over __104__ gun stores and ammunition dealers can remain open alongside pharmacies, gas stations and laundromats, leading to confusion and legal challenges as at least 19 states have issued some form of stay-at-home __105__. In Ohio, Illinois and Michigan, gun stores have been deemed essential. In New York, New Jersey and Massachusetts, they have not.

In Los Angeles, where long __106__ of customers have been stretching out the door of some gun shops over the past few weeks, the county sheriff ordered his deputies to make sure they were closed after 10 million residents were ordered __107__ at home starting last weekend. But __108__ Tuesday, after the county's top lawyer said the shops could stay open, the sheriff reversed his decision.

The patchwork of policies and shifting interpretations have highlighted the question of what is truly an essential ____109___ during the pandemic, with lobbyists and guns rights advocates arguing __110__ even a public health emergency shouldn't restrict the Second Amendment.

"People want to exercise their God-given right __111__ arms and protect their families," said Mark Oliva, a spokesman for the National Shooting Sports Foundation, the gun industry association lobbying for special protection for __112__ and manufacturers.

But advocates for __113__ gun safety measures argue that a run on gun stores could itself pose a public health concern if new buyers aren't trained properly, new __114__ aren't stored safely and background checks aren't completed.

"Guns will not make Americans __115__ in the face of Covid-19," said John Feinblatt, president of Everytown for Gun Safety. (...)

101) a) designatingb) designatec) designationd) designatedVoix passive: BE (ici au present perfect) + participe passé d'un verbe régulier => -ED

102) a) much b) many c) a lot d) lot of
 'businesses' est au pluriel => on élimine 'much' (qui ne fonctionne qu'avec un nom indénombrable, nom qui ne se met pas au pluriel).

Les propositions c) et d) sont incomplètes : la bonne réponse serait « A LOT OF »

103) a) more b) fewer c) less d) much

LESS et FEWER (= moins de) sont en contradiction avec la phrase de la ligne 3 ("Firearm and ammunition sales have soared in recent weeks, so clearly, some Americans want them").

MUCH ne fonctionne qu'avec un nom indénombrable, nom qui ne se met pas au pluriel, or PEOPLE est ici le nom au pluriel qui signifie « les gens » (et non le nom singulier qui veut dire « peuple ») -- on peut d'ailleurs le vérifier en regardant le verbe au présent simple qui suit le sujet, « try » (« tries » si le sujet avait été au singulier).

104) a) through b) weather c) though d) whether

Plus difficile car la phrase est longue et assez complexe.

WHETHER (à ne pas confondre avec "weather", la météo) est souvent synonyme de "if" et permet d'introduire une alternative, un choix entre deux possibilités (ici la 2° possibilité est sous-entendue « si les armureries peuvent rester ouvertes ... ou pas ! »)

THOUGH (= bien que) et THROUGH (= à travers) se ressemblent mais aucun ne convient dans la phrase.

105) a) orderliness b) orderly c) orders d) ordered 'stay-at-home' joue ici le role d'un adjectif. Derrière OF + Adjectif, il faut un nom. On élimine donc B (adjectif) et D (participe passé). 'Orderliness' est un nom mais signifie 'le fait de bien ordonner', 'la capacité à bien ranger', et non 'des ordres' (dans le sens d'injonctions) => 'stay-at-home orders'= les ordres, les obligations de confinement. 106) a) queued b) queue c) lined d) lines Derrière 'long' (adjectif), on s'attend à avoir un nom, ce qui est confirmé par le fait qu'il y a OF derrière le blanc => on élimine A et C, ce ne sont pas des noms. De plus, devant 'long', il y a l'article zéro, donc on ne peut choisir qu'un indénombrable ou un nom au pluriel derrière l'adjectif => on élimine B (dénombrable au singulier). d) stayed 107) a) to stay b) stav c) staying Derrière le verbe "order", il faut une tournure infinitive 108) a) for b) to c) on d) at Pour introduire un jour précis, c'est la préposition ON en anglais... 109) a) society b) business c) companies d) enterprises 'an essential' + nom nécessairement au singulier à cause de AN => on élimine C et D. Attention à 'society', faux-ami car il signifie uniquement la société dans laquelle nous vivons, la communauté (ou un club, une association, mais PAS une entreprise) d) which 110) a) than b) that c) then Derrière le verbe de discours 'argue', on va rapporter les paroles grâce à la conjonction THAT, (notamment à l'écrit, car à l'oral, ce THAT a tendance à disparaître) ; c'est valable pour de nombreux verbes de discours b) bearing c) of bear d) for bearing 111) a) to bear Derrière le groupe nominal "the right", il faut une tournure infinitive. Ex : the right to vote. d) dealings 112) a) dealers b) deals c) dealing

Entre "protection for" et "and manufacturers", on a besoin d'un nom. La logique veut qu'on choisisse un nom se référant à des personnes, afin de faire un parallèle avec « manufacturers » => la protection des vendeurs (ici, armuriers) et des fabricants d'armes (ici c'est le fait de protéger ces catégories de travailleurs des fermetures obligatoires liées au virus).

113) a) strictly b) more strict c) less strict d) stricter

On a besoin de lire la suite de la phrase pour choisir entre des mesures « plus strictes » ou « moins strictes ». Avec ces mots, "pose a public health concern if new buyers aren't trained properly", on va s'orienter vers "plus strictes". Autre indice, le paragraphe précédent défendait le port d'armes, mais ce paragraphe-ci commence par « But... », on s'attend donc à un argument contraire.

+ Comparatif de supériorité, à partir d'un adjectif court

114) a) weapon b) guns c) arm d) gun-owners

Devant 'new', il y a l'article zéro, donc on ne peut choisir qu'un indénombrable ou un nom au pluriel derrière l'adjectif => on élimine A et C, dénombrables au singulier.

De plus, ce ne sont pas les propriétaires (D) mais les armes (B) qu'on doit stocker en toute sécurité...

115) a) less safe b) more safe c) safer d) safety

Il faut comprendre la logique du texte. La citation vient appuyer le paragraphe précédent qui émet des doutes sur la nécessité de maintenir les armureries ouvertes. Attention il y a une négation à prendre en compte « not make Americans ... ». Pour confirmer la prise de position du locuteur, on a son « titre » (president of Everytown for Gun Safety).

+ on forme un comparatif de supériorité, à partir d'un adjectif court

'safety' aurait été envisageable s'il y avait eu un cas possessif au bout de Americans => une apostrophe uniquement, pour les pluriels réguliers (Americans' safety)

Text 2: US urged to cut 50% of emissions by 2030 to spur other countries to action

Oliver Milman,

Tue 9 Mar 2021

The US needs to commit to (116) slashing its planet-heating emissions by at least half by the end of the decade to address the climate crisis and (117) spur other countries to greater action, a coalition of American environmental groups has urged.

Joe Biden's administration is set to (118) unveil a new national emissions reduction target at a climate meeting it has convened with other major economic powers on Earth Day, 22 April, which it hopes will galvanize countries that are currently dangerously (119) lagging in efforts to (120) stave off disastrous climate change.

A (121) motley selection of environmental groups and leaders have said the US goal must be no lower than a 50% cut in its greenhouse gas emissions by 2030, based on 2005 levels. This will, the groups argue, put America on track to meet Biden's aspiration of net zero emissions by 2050, as well as provide a major push to countries and businesses that (122) were bereft of American climate leadership during Donald Trump's presidency.

"The target has to be ambitious enough to show US leadership, but also credible, it can't just (123) be plucked from thin air," said Nat Keohane, vice-president for international climate at the Environmental Defense Fund (EDF). "This is ambitious but also feasible. We need to show the US is bringing everything it can to this fight."

A new EDF report calls for a "whole of government effort" to combat the climate crisis, with all cars sold in the US to be zero emissions from 2035, a clean electricity standard to shift the (124) grid to renewable energy sources such as solar and wind, and new regulations to restrict methane emissions from oil and gas drilling.

Other environmental groups, including the Union of Concerned Scientists, World Resources Institute and National Resources Defense Council, have also rallied to the idea of a 50% cut, along with figures such as Jay Inslee, the governor of Washington, and Michael Bloomberg, former mayor of New York City, as crucial to curb everworsening wildfires, floods and heatwaves that are suffered disproportionately by underserved Americans of color.

"We see this important opportunity to (125) bolster equity and fairness," said Starla Yeh, a clean energy policy specialist at the Natural Resources Defense Council. "The goal is not only achievable but cost effective. The more progress we make this decade, the better off we will be."

The US first set an emissions reduction target, known in diplomatic jargon as a nationally determined contribution (or NDC), in 2014 during Barack Obama's administration, vowing to cut emissions by up to 28% by 2025, on 2005 levels. The target by itself does not lower emissions but helps set federal government policy and provides a framework for businesses, cities and states to work towards.

A 50% reduction by 2030 would "be a challenge", according to Nathan Hultman, director at Center for Global Sustainability at the University of Maryland, who helped design the Obama-era goal, but would be achievable with a "whole of society approach"

Text 3: Pulp Friction

Every second, one hectare of the world's rainforest is destroyed. That's equivalent to two football fields. An area the size of New York City is lost every day. In a year, that adds up to 31 million hectares -- more than the land area of Poland. This alarming rate of destruction has serious consequences for the environment; scientists estimate, for example, that 137 species of plant, insect or animal become extinct every day due to logging. In British Columbia, where, since 1990, thirteen rainforest valleys have been clearcut, 142 species of salmon have already become extinct, and the habitats of grizzly bears, wolves and many other creatures are threatened. Logging, however, provides jobs, profits, taxes for the government and cheap products of all kinds for consumers, so the government is reluctant to restrict or control it.

Much of Canada's forestry production goes towards making pulp and paper. According to the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association, Canada supplies 34% of the world's wood pulp and 49% of its newsprint paper. If these paper products could be produced in some other way, Canadian forests could be preserved. Recently, a possible alternative way of producing paper has been suggested by agriculturalists and environmentalists: a plant called hemp.

Hemp was cultivated by many cultures for thousands of years. It produces fibre which can be made into paper, fuel, oils, textiles, food, and rope. For centuries, it was essential to the economies of many countries because it was used to make the ropes and cables used on sailing ships; colonial expansion and the establishment of a world-wide trading network would not have been feasible without hemp. Nowadays, ships' cables are usually made from wire or synthetic fibres, but scientists are now suggesting that the cultivation of hemp should be revived for the production of paper and pulp. According to its proponents, four times as much paper can be produced from land using hemp rather than trees, and many environmentalists believe that the large-scale cultivation of hemp could reduce the pressure on Canada's forests.

However, there is a problem: hemp is illegal in many countries of the world. This plant, so useful for fibre, rope, oil, fuel and textiles, is a species of cannabis, related to the plant from which marijuana is produced. In the late 1930s, a movement to ban the drug marijuana began to gather force, resulting in the eventual banning of the cultivation not only of the plant used to produce the drug, but also of the commercial fibre-producing hemp plant. Although both George Washington and Thomas Jefferson grew hemp in large quantities on their own land, any American growing the plant today would soon find himself in prison -- despite the fact that marijuana cannot be produced from the hemp plant, since it contains almost no THC (the active ingredient in the drug).

In recent years, two major movements for legalization have been gathering strength. One group of activists believes that ALL cannabis should be legal -- both the hemp plant and the marijuana plant -- and that the use of the drug marijuana should not be an offense. They argue that marijuana is not dangerous or addictive, and that it is used by large numbers of people who are not criminals but productive members of society. They also point out that marijuana is less toxic than alcohol or tobacco. The other legalization movement is concerned only with the hemp plant used to produce fibre; this group wants to make it legal to cultivate the plant and sell the fibre for paper and pulp production. This second group had a major triumph: in 1997, Canada legalized the farming of hemp for fibre. For the first time since 1938, hundreds of farmers are planting this crop, and we can expect to see more pulp and paper produced from this new source.

126. The main idea of paragraph 1 is:	B. Logging is destroying the rainforests.

127. The main idea of paragraph 2 is: C. Canada is a major supplier of paper and pulp.

128. How much of the world's newsprint paper is supplied by Canada? B. About a half

129. The main idea of paragraph 3 is: A. Paper could be made from hemp instead of trees.

130. What equipment on a ship was made from hemp? D. ties

131. Which answer is NOT correct? A. Hemp is used to produce drugs.

- 132. Two famous people are mentioned in paragraph 4. They were: C. presidents
- 133. The main idea of paragraph 5 is: C. Recently, many people have been working to legalize hemp.

Text 4: How you can harness the placebo effect

It can influence your body as strongly as some treatments – in the short term. Here's how to exploit the power of positive thinking.

My mum swears that reiki, a technique claimed to channel healing energy through touch, cured her painful frozen shoulder. And my sister promises me a homeopathic remedy will relieve my frequent stomach aches.

Such claims raise eyebrows among those who champion rational thinking. There is often no physiological mechanism by which these and other alternative therapies could work, and they regularly fail to pass the standard tests for efficacy in medicine. But if someone feels better after their chosen remedy, who are we to say it didn't work for them?

At the heart of such questions lies the placebo effect – the way that we tend to feel better just because we believe a medical treatment is going to work, even if the treatment itself is a sham. The power of placebos has been shown in many settings. In one study from 2002, 60 people were even given fake surgery to treat arthritic knees. An elaborate ruse involving doctored footage on a video screen convinced them that they had full surgery, whereas in reality they had only had the skin on their knees cut. Even so, their symptoms improved, and they recovered as well as those who had real surgery. The improvement lasted at least a year.

"We feel better if we believe a treatment will work – even if the treatment is a sham".

"It's hard to believe that sham surgery can produce a long-lasting effect," says Luana Colloca, who studies the placebo effect at the University of Maryland in Baltimore. "But it can."
