Developing an argument: Choose one statement you agree with most, one you find problematic, and prepare arguments. Some students will present their ideas to the class.

Statement 1

America has moved beyond racism. Race does no longer play a role in people's opportunities.

Statement 2

Racism has changed rather than disappeared: it is now less explicit but can still be embedded in institutions and social structures.

Statement 3

Historical injustice cannot explain present-day inequalities indefinitely.

Statement 4

You cannot understand racial inequality in America today without understanding slavery, segregation and their legacy.

Statement 5

The fight against racism has become more divisive than racism itself

Statement 6

Addressing racial inequalities sometimes requires treating people differently rather than treating everyone equally.

Statement 7

America's growing political polarisation is making it increasingly difficult to have an honest conversation about race.

Developing an argument: Choose one statement you agree with most, one you find problematic, and prepare arguments. Some students will present their ideas to the class.

Statement 1

America has moved beyond racism. Race does no longer play a role in people's opportunities.

Statement 2

Racism has changed rather than disappeared: it is now less explicit but can still be embedded in institutions and social structures.

Statement 3

Historical injustice cannot explain present-day inequalities indefinitely.

Statement 4

You cannot understand racial inequality in America today without understanding slavery, segregation and their legacy.

Statement 5

The fight against racism has become more divisive than racism itself

Statement 6

Addressing racial inequalities sometimes requires treating people differently rather than treating everyone equally.

Statement 7

America's growing political polarisation is making it increasingly difficult to have an honest conversation about race.