

MAIN IDEA:

It is about New Zealand and how the side on which people drive impacts its climate goals.

The central point is that New Zealand is facing difficulties to make its vehicles cleaner.

This document raises the question of whether NZ people can reconcile the country's environmental concerns and their use of cars.

WRAP UP:

All in all, it seems that New Zealand won't be able to reduce its carbon emissions to reach / meet its climate goals, if it doesn't change certain customs.

An uphill battle

It's no mean feat

It's no picnic

Not a walk in the park / not a day at the beach

KEY QUESTION (Commentary)