

In your opinion, do technological advances provide solutions to current issues?

In your opinion, is there a contradiction between the image of a tolerant society the US seeks to project and its current situation?

In your opinion, in what circumstances should citizens take things into their own hands to bring about social change ?