

Main idea / Main question raised by the article

This article shows how song lyrics have evolved, perhaps not for the better, in recent years.

This article looks at the ins and outs of the evolution, not always positive, of song lyrics over the last few decades.

Questions you should ask yourself after reading the text:

So what ?

Is the fact that lyrics evolve with society really a problem ?

Is society seeking too much efficiency at the expense quality ?

Why have lyrics changed over the past few years ?

Is music really getting worse ?

Is it accurate to make such a sweeping generalization about society/music ?

Do simpler lyrics mean a simpler society ?

What about songs in other languages ?

Is song being self-centered a bad thing?

Is it because people have a shorter attention span ?

Is the study biased / reliable?

Main questions for a commentary / Problématique

Could the change from society's old ways to today's ways really be so negative ?

Is art only a reflection of society's evolution ?
